Memorandum regarding the probable amount of monsoon rainfall in 1968

New Delhi, the 10th June 1968

Previous weather conditions over certain parts of the world enable us to form an estimate, within somewhat wide limits, of the monsoon rainfall of India during the period June to September. These predictions aim to pass a statistical test of 80 per cent success, in other words aim at being correct four times out of five on the average over a long series of years.

The data used are given in section 2 below; these are followed by notes on the relevant inferences that may be drawn from them.

2. Data

Equatorial Pressure.—Pressure was in defect by 0.7 mb. at Seychelles in February and March.

South Rhodesia.—Rainfall from October 1967 to April 1968 was in defect by 294.6 mm.

South America.—Pressure departures were as follows:—

	Buenos Aires	Cordoba	Santiago
April 1968	+1.7 mb.	+2.3 mb.	+1.2 mb.
May 1968	+1.6 mb.	+2.1 mb.	+0.5 mb.

Upper winds in m.p.s.—Bangalore, April, 6 Km.—The northerly component was -0.9.

Calcutta, May.—The easterly component was -8.9 at 4 Km. and -5.5 at 2 Km. Gwalior, March, 2 Km.—The easterly component was -6.7.

3. Inferences from the information

For the Peninsula—taken to consist of Maharashtra, Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh, Telangana, Interior Mysore North, Coastal Andhra Pradesh and Coastal Mysore (excluding South Kanara)—the available factors found to be of most importance are, in the order of decreasing reliability, Bangalore upper winds, South American pressure, South Rhodesia rain and Calcutta upper winds. Of these factors, South American pressure and South Rhodesia rain are both very favourable, Bangalore upper winds are indifferent and Calcutta upper winds are moderately unfavourable. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four to one chance that the monsoon rainfall in the Peninsula during June to September 1968 will lie above 101 per cent of the normal rainfall.

For North West India—taken to consist of Jammu and Kashmir, West Uttar Pradesh, Haryana, the Punjab, Himachal Pradesh, Delhi, Chandigarh and Rajasthan—the factors used are, in the order of decreasing reliability, Equatorial pressure, Calcutta upper winds, South American pressure, Gwalior upper winds and South Rhodesia rain. Of these factors, Calcutta upper winds, Equatorial pressure, South Rhodesia rain and South American pressure are all very favourable while Gwalior upper winds are indifferent. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four to one chance that the monsoon rainfall in Northeast India during June to September 1968 will lie above 115 per cent of the normal rainfall.

4. Summary of Forecast

The monsoon rainfall during June to September 1968 is likely to be normal in the Peninsula and in slight excess in Northwest India.
